The Curtain Can't Go Up Until The Wall Comes Down

by Bertha D. Blues

We've got a little project on our main street:
A theatre that's really quite a jewel.
It's something that we've needed for a while now,
A project that will make our city Cool.
We've got the talent, got imagination
To stage productions that will fill the hall.
There's just one little detail that's a poser:
The folks will never see 'em through the wall!

CHORUS

The curtain can't go up until the wall comes down,
Without a stage the singer cannot sing.
The show 'll never go until the footlights shine.
Without a pit the band 'll never swing.
No names will shine in lights upon the marquee;
No stars will flicker on the silver screen.
The curtain can't go up until the wall comes down,
So we're achin' to be rakin' in some Green.

Our house divided poses quite a problem.
With a wall, dramatic obstacles abound:
"O Romeo, O wherefore art thou Romeo?"
"I'M IN THE BLUE THEATRE - GO AROUND!"
An expensive proposition, we admit it;
It's cheap to say "the wall has got to go!"
We can kick it, scratch it, pound it, curse it, hit it,
But there it stays until we get some dough.

(CHORUS)
